

Coir is the fiber extracted from the outer husks of coconuts and thus you will still hear it referred to as "coco mats" or "coconut matting". Coir matting is a centuries old craft with the vast majority of the world's production based in the Alleppey region in Kerala in the south western part of India.

Coir products are 100% natural, hardwearing, attractive and warm underfoot. They are sound insulating, mothproof and rot & fungi resistant, flame retardant, anti-static, and with regular treatment are easily kept clean. Coir fiber is naturally hygroscopic, breathing in and giving out atmosphere moisture, thus helping to maintain an equable humidity.

Coir mats possess great absorbency and excellent scraping properties. Coir products can be used in almost all commercial and domestic situations either loose layed or fitted. If used outdoors they should be placed in areas not directly open to the weather.

PVC-backed coir is the long proven standard entrance matting material available in a range of colours. It is easy cut, shape or size without finishing and can be manufactured to display your logo or message.

All our coir mats are 17mm deep and are cut from 1 metre or 2 metre rolls and conform to BS4790:1987. Coir matting is supplied on a direct purchase basis only and sent direct to site. It is always advisable to fully adhere the material to the sub-floor to avoid stretching or shrinkage. The material may either be stuck down direct or in conjunction with an underlay system. It is recommended a skilled carpet layer is always employed when fitting mats in a matwell etc.
